CONTINUE THE ARMISTICE

Threats of another open clash between operators and miners in southern Ohio coal fields is bad news for the state, which had hoped to see the industry's wage problem settled long before this. But Governor White's peace parley failed to produce harmony; it merely was able to postpone discord.

The armistice arranged to facilitate negotiations is scheduled to end the 17th of May. At that time, unless the governor can bring operators and miners together again in a new effort to conciliate differences, there may be resumption of the violence which caused state troops to be sent to the coal fields a year ago.

In consideration of the times it seems the omen for conciliation should be better than it has been previously. There is a new administration and a new deal in Washington. Industry is showing signs of reviving health. An experiment to determine the possibilities of stimulating business by management of the national currency has been authorized and soon will be under way.

The soft coal industry has been suffering from the effect of conditions which everyone hopes are to be improved in the near future. Although it cannot be hoped that it ever will regain all the losses it has sustained through competition and change, there is good reason to believe that a general revival of business automatically would eliminate many of its most grievous problems.

Any hard and fast arrangement concluded at this time, and particularly any arrangement which would tend to continue in effect the bitterness which has been disrupting the soft coal industry, would be, in effect, a contract between operators and labor made under uncertain conditions. It is not unreasonable to hope that the industry will take advantage of the fact that potential improvement is in the air to continue a truce, since it seems impossible to reach a satisfactory compromise.

SCHOOL OR ASYLUM?

A recommendation comes from the finance committee of the Ohio house of representatives that one of four state normal schools be converted into an asylum.

An institution of higher education for the training of our brainiest young men and women would be transformed into a place of refuge for the insane, feeble-minded or idiotic.

The fraternity boys and the sorority girls seeking to qualify themselves for the noble profession of teaching would be displaced in halls, class rooms and campus by mental and physical human dementes.

The proposal seems preposterous, and yet it stems from bitter necessity, since Ohio has a surplus of teachers, a great and increasing number of insane, feeble-minded and idiotic residents—and no money.

The committee reports that the state has 36,000 wards in overcrowded hospitals for the insane, feeble-minded and epileptic, with a waiting list of 1,500 who cannot be given custodial care because of lack of facilities. That situation also is serious, and the rapid increase of mental cases is appalling.

Under the circumstances, it may be necessary to sacrifice one of the four state colleges at Athens, Oxford, Bowling Green or Kent.

The committee attempts to deal as best it can with an emergency condition and something must be done about it immediately. For the present, apparently, we must resort to an expedient. Eventually, the legislature will have to pass laws to curb the reproduction of mental incompetents.—Toledo Blade.

WANTS OLYMPICS

WHEN the stock exchange opened yesterday morning stocks rose from $1 to $4 a share, due partly to a cheaper dollar.

Many believe that the best thing to do with an inflated dollar is to invest it. There is also the more cheerful feeling that the cheaper dollar has promised.

The British pound went up to $.45, highest point in a long time. The dollars value of the pound depends on the world's opinion of our dollar. The pound goes up because the dollar goes down.

CHANCELLOR HITLER of Germany has begun the important work of "expurgating" German libraries. Among many authors barred is the learned Professor Franz Boas of Columbia University, New York, declared "unclean" because he denies the "Nordic" or "Aryan" claim of racial superiority. Unless Mongols and Tartars are "Nordic," which they are not, the word "Nordic" does not apply to all Germany by any means.

Marauders from Asia, including the great invaders Attila, Genghis Khan and Tamerlane, left behind them their race and fighting blood on many invasions along the eastern borders of Europe. Mr. Hitler should not overlook that or the fact that the "pure bred" among human beings is rare.

GERMANY expects the Olympic games in 1936, and suggests that the drama be added to other sports in which all nations would compete.

Hollywood competing with the Theater Francais, the German theater competing with that of Japan, would be interesting, but it probably will not happen.

In any case you will not hear the magic formula "Vas you dere, Sharlie?" Hitler would not allow "Sharlie" or his partner to come.

STRANGE new radio waves, to get away from Europe, are coming to us from the very center of the milky way. There are "galactic" radio waves, different from cosmic rays, that comes from all directions in space. Somebody, somewhere, in the middle of the milky way, many trillions of miles from here, may be trying to send us signals. It's hardly probable, because this ignorant little earth, just starting, does not amount to enough to make it worth while.

JAPAN'S cabinet statistical bureau notes that Japanese wealth has diminished. It amounts now to $27,500,000,000, or 110,000,000,000 yen. Our national income was once three times that amount.

Interesting is the statement that Japan's government owns 12 percent of all the country's wealth, including land, railroads, bridges, homes, factories.

The Japanese government plans to give a monopoly of its oil business to one American company, Standard Oil of New York, and one British company. That ought to be profitable for the companies, also for Japan.

If my wife sees those drum sticks they'll take a header out the window. She had better quit throwing my play-things away. The neighbors are talking. There were those trick dribble water glasses I bought for a dinner party. Where are they? In some ash can I suppose. Yet she'll never let me haul off and be funny. Those are the kind of women men stick to.

Well, I must be thinking up pearls to scatter. The big thing about this job of columnizing is to keep the reader interested. One of those sticks is longer than the other. No, the same size, but the way they were laying it looked so. As I was saying, keep the reader interested. Let him feel you are his pal. A reader like that would never throw your drum sticks out of a window.

Take, for instance, one of these sticks. This one I just picked up. What did it ever do to anyone but give them a snatch of happiness? A little rhythm to the monotony of life. Look — tattle-de-at-tat! Wait until I get the other and show you on the side of this metal wastebasket. How's that and I never had a lesson in my life. I never got to do things like other boys.

For Monday, May 8

Mondays astrological forecast is for a rather abrupt and unforeseen state of affairs, with possible sudden upheavals, journeys, changes or new arrangements of the affairs and interests.

The forces and faculties will be found at a high tension with the spirit of initiative and enterprise under high stimulus and the mind versatile and clever, but be on guard against petty enemies and deceptions.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of sudden upheaval with new interests, associations and environs. These new opportunities may be grasped through a heightened tendency to bold initiative and under high mental stimulus to clever and quick decisions and manipulation of openings.

A child born on this day should be alert, versatile, high tensioned and ready to grasp opportunities and advantages, but it may be restless and fond of change.

It does not pay to work habitually in dusty places. Ultimately the tissues of the lungs will become clogged with the irritating material.

Sunday's horoscope is an encouraging and propitious one for all spiritual, mystical and singular or peculiar vocations and employments and also of great promise for the solid and substantial fortunes of church and clergy, and also for inheritances and property holders.

Offsetting these, however, is a menace of deception, malice and harboring misadventure. It would be well to be careful with "clever" speech and writings.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of some substantial success in the matter of accumulations of property or reward for industry and fidelity with a modicum of increase of fortunes and po-

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Silicosis, Lung Infection, Decreasing

"Silicosis" is a disease of the lungs produced by breathing dust which contains a high percentage of silica. It has always been a common disease among miners who are exposed to stone dust. At one time it was particularly common in the mines of South Africa, Australia, Canada and the United States.

A recent report of the United States public health service makes it appear that there is a decrease in the prevalence of silicosis and other occupational diseases.

The decrease can be attributed to the laws that have been enacted and enforced to protect the worker from unnecessary exposure to irritating dust and vapors.

Breathing of Dust

Before the disease was properly understood, men engaged in labor that did them harm. They worked on siliceous rock and were exposed to the dust of metal mining, coal mining, quarrying of sandstone or granite, tunneling, excavating, sand blasting, stone carving, grinding and polishing. The lungs became laden with the irritating dust. Many of the victims of these employments succumbed to this disease.

The sufferer from silicosis is susceptible to infections of the lungs. As a rule, the afflicted individual contracts pneumonia and, because of his lowered resistance, tuberculosis may result.

Working Conditions Improved

I am glad to say that much has been done to reduce the prevalence of this ailment. The conditions of all mines have been improved. They are now equipped with ventilation systems, safety lamps, and devices that detect poisonous gases and increased amounts of dust. Dust is prevented by wet drilling and other "wet mining methods", such as sprays and water blasts which diminish the dust after blasting.

In certain work where dust is more difficult to control, the men are protected by the wearing of masks similar to those used by our soldiers during the World war. All miners and other persons constantly exposed to dust should be examined before employment. Men who have weak lungs and a tendency towards tuberculosis, should not be permitted to engage in this work. They may do other things with safety, but mining will be fatal to them.

The Symptoms

Persons who are exposed to excessive amounts of dust over a long period of time suffer from a condition called "pneumoniosis". If the dust is coal dust, the condition is known as "anthracosis". These two conditions are similar to silicosis and can be prevented by proper precautions.

Sufferers from this disease should avoid exposure to irritating dust. It is advisable to change occupation at once.

The early symptoms of silicosis closely resemble those of tuberculosis. There is a persistent cough, loss in weight and repeated attacks of colds, with pneumonia in some cases. This trouble leads to a steady loss of health. If neglected the sufferer is unable to work and becomes an invalid.

It does not pay to work habitually in dusty places. Ultimately the tissues of the lungs will become clogged with the irritating material.

Service is a much overworked word. It has become meaningless to many people. It is an idle word when spoken by some lips. It is to be regretted that such a misinterpretation has come about. It took Jesus Christ to put real life into this word. In His day, there was the glorification of the master. The overlord was the one to be honored and respected. Jesus plunged out into new channels. He began the program of glorifying service. He came to minister and to give His life a ransom for many. He stooped from heaven to earth. One can write His name high in the annals of history through service.

Morning worship 11. Sermon. "The Interested Christ."

One's interest usually follows those lines that have an appealing attraction. The fact that Jesus was the Son of God did not prevent Him from being interested in the affairs of the disciples. Even though He had only a few days before, passed through the experience of death and had come forth alive, this did not hinder Him from being concerned about the affairs of the disciples. It would be a very sad conclusion indeed if the conviction was established that the affairs of man are of no concern to the mind of Christ. No such conclusion can be reached from the study of Holy Scripture. Our Lord and Savior is the friend and interested companion of the millions of disciples today.

Changing Stars No Novelty in Filmdom

* * * * *

Metamorphosis in La Garbo Not First Undergone by Glamorous Swede—Nor Is She the Only Star to Change Course.

The amazing change in Greta Garbo is the big topic of conversation in Hollywood these days, for the glamorous star seems to have taken on a new personality since she left here nearly a year ago for a vacation in her native Sweden. But changing stars are no longer unusual in Hollywood. Old-timers can recall Miss Garbo's first arrival in the film capital, back in 1924. She was then a rather shy immigrant girl. But directors, press agents, roles that fitted her like a glove, and the acquisition of the famous Garbo bob, made her into the glamorous creature she is today. Nor is she the only star to change her course. Consider Clara Bow, who flashed to stardom by her portrayal of the madcap hoyden. Clara had a long layoff after her celebrated law battle with Daisy De Voe. When she staged a comeback, she was not the same Bow. Instead we saw a lady of dignity and charm, who might have played the role of tragedy queen. Then there is Jean Harlow, who also left her original orbit and attained success on another course. Miss Harlow began her picture career as a shy ingenue. But her lovely platinum hair was seen by directors as a heaven-sent asset for "vamp" roles. So Jean became a vamp and climbed to fame and fortune. One could go on reciting instances of film queens who found it profitable to chart new courses—maybe Miss Garbo's latest metamorphosis was arranged by her public relations adviser with a similar idea in mind.

When and How Much to Eat To Maintain Good Health

A correspondent is interested in discovering the minimum daily food requirements of an adult. This is an important thing to know, just as it is vital to know just what the average daily food should contain in vitamins, minerals, carbohydrates and regulating foods, as well as fluids.

We live by what we eat and the wonder is that so many of us are haphazard in the building of our menus, when we can, with a little knowledge, be scientifically selective in our meals. We took our problem to a famous professor of dietetics, wishing to give our readers absolutely expert advice and here is his list of the minimum daily food requirements of an adult.

First of all, there should be one cup of milk, fresh or evaporated in beverage or in cooked dishes; and one egg, any style for breakfast or luncheon. For meat or substitute, one large serving of meat, any kind, three and one-third ounces, for dinner, or cheese, beans, peas, lentils served once or twice weekly as a meat substitute. There should be six slices of bread, eaten at meals; and two medium helpings of potatoes prepared any style.

Of other vegetables, there should be three to four servings, if fewer vegetables are used, serve double helpings. The vegetable requirements should include one portion of raw lettuce, tomato, celery, cabbage or potato, one root vegetable such as carrots, beets, turnips, and one leafy vegetable such as spinach or other greens.

Sweets Essential, Too

There should be at least one orange, any style, for breakfast, or in salads and desserts, as well as one serving of any other kind of fruit.

Butter and other fats should be included at the rate of one tablespoon butter, and two tablespoons other fats such as vegetable oils served in salads or any way desired. Four teaspoons of sweets, sugar, jelly, syrup, honey or molasses are essential.

A person doing heavy work may require a higher energy diet. This may be supplied by extra bread, cereals, beans or meat.

We think that with this guide, that readers can quite well maintain menus that will be healthful, as they will be serving the correct amount of the vital elements held necessary to human health.

HOME MAKING HELPS

Brightening a Dull Room

Don't despair if you have a room that is dark, dingy or dreary with a dull outlook, perhaps over chimney or onto a bleak court. Don't dab it with codles of cream colored paint or dot it indiscriminately with pathetically gay cushions and violent hued drapes. Tackle the problem scientifically and artistically and you will be able to create a room that will be vibrant, glowing with life and color.

First of all, don't try to lighten the walls. Make them as dark as possible. Do them in rich purple, deep blue, deep green or even black if you will. Then, set to work and introduce color, warm, gay color. Do away with ceiling lights and with bracket fixtures. Have lovely lamps, plenty of them with warm rich shades. Buy those warm pottery and vase lamps, in vivid colorings. Scout the shops for those gleaming copper lamps, quite inexpensive they are, but very lovely.

Mirrors Reflect Light

At the same time look out for colorful glass bowls in lovely reds or blues to hold some gay flowers. Pick up mirrors, mirrors with warm bronze or gilt frames. Place them where they will catch and reflect the lights and colors. Choose brilliantly colored draperies that will pick up and intensify the predominant colors of the room. Have plenty of cushions against dark backgrounds.

If the window frames a dull outlook, obliterate it by brilliant chintz draperies with some colorful object such as a bright glass bowl with flowers or a window box on the sill or radiator. Draw up a brightly covered chair in the vicinity of the window, not at the view beyond.

The effect is vibrant, warm, as is the case with another dark room treated with magenta walls and draperies with copper lamps.

Of course, much thought and care must be given when undertaking to decorate such a room. This is more important than the outlay. If you tackle the problem correctly you will build a room that will be so intriguing so gleaming with life that you will quite forget that it is never flooded with sunshine or that it looks out on a dull or ugly view.

Fish Deposited In Creeks of County

LISBON, May 6.—A tank truck load of fish from the state hatchery at Sandusky was deposited in west and middle forks of Beaver creek and Bull creek Friday under the supervision of Deputy Game Warden L. W. Boring. The stock consisted of bass and silver catfish. This is the second truck of fish received in the county within a month, the first being deposited in Guilford lake.

The division of conservation has issued an order that no row boats will be permitted on the water to Guilford lake until after July 1, and that at no time until further order will power boats be permitted to operate on the lake.

SYNOPSIS

The smug little town of Navestock jolted on, rustily, clumsily, contented to jog along in a rut, resenting the interference of anyone who sought to change its mode of living. The people, therefore, were very antagonistic toward young Dr. John Wolfe, assistant to the town's blundering old Dr. Threadgold, when he tried to better conditions. The young physician realizes also the pitiable plight of the inhabitants in the hands of the old doctor, who cautions him to be more sparing in the use of "necessaries" medicines. Wolfe, stunned at the unsanitary conditions he finds everywhere, prepares a map showing the unhealthy districts. Mrs. Threadgold comes upon the map and considering Wolfe's researches "gross disloyalty and underhand spying," suggests that he be warned to descontinue or be discharged. Wolfe's one inducement to keep fighting is the friendship and encouragement of lovely and vivacious Jess Mascul. Wolfe shows Dr. Threadgold the dangerous germs he found in the well water of a house where there is a case of diphtheria. The narrow minded Threadgold, afraid to face facts and fearing Wolfe may usurp his position, resents the younger man's "interference." Wolfe warns of a terrible calamity should typhoid fever or cholera strike Navestock. Not wishing to appear superior, Wolfe turns over his findings to Threadgold to do with as he pleases. Later, the old doctor tells his wife a convincing tale of how he put Wolfe in his place. She urges him to burn Wolfe's papers. Discouraged and longing for someone to talk to, Wolfe visits Jess, who urges him to stay and fight. Then gazing into each other's eyes, they are strangely embarrassed. Josiah Crabbe, the one inhabitant of Navestock who has the courage to live up to his convictions and is hated for it, is keenly interested in Wolfe. Following a tirade of abuse from the townspeople, Threadgold decides to discharge Wolfe. He destroys the young doctor's research report.

CHAPTER THIRTY

Wolfe had left his horse in the stable and was pulling off his gloves in the half-darkened surgery when he heard footsteps coming along the passage that led to the hall. The door opened, and a white cap appeared.

"Is that you, Mr. Wolfe?"

"Yes, Kate."

"Dr. Threadgold told me to tell you that he wanted to see you sir, directly you came in."

"Yes. Where is he?"

"In the dining-room, sir."

"All right. And, Kate, get me a cup of tea. I haven't had anything since dinner."

"I will, sir. I'll put it in here for you."

Betrothal Grieves Ex-Kaiser

Preferring marriage to the girl he loves rather than the possibility of one day sitting on the throne of Germany, Prince Wilhelm of Prussia, eldest son of the German Crown Prince and regarded as the logical ruler in the event that the monarchy is restored, has renounced his royal rights in order that he may wed Fraulein Dorothea von Salviati, a commoner descended from a noble Italian family. The engagement, recently announced, is said to have proved displeasing to the former Kaiser, Prince Wilhelm's grandfather.

Her father, R. F. Reifsnyder, was notified.

Profitable Deal

TROY, O. May 6—An oration on interracial problems entitled "My Problems and Yours" won for John A. Cobb, Cleveland, Negro student of Western Reserve University, first place in the annual intercollegiate civic oratorical contest at Ohio Wesleyan last night.

Carl Arlt, of Colgate, won second prize. The other contestants were Harry Thompson, Allegheny college; Noble Moore, Albion college; Glenn Vogelsang, Wooster, and Frank Dodge, Ohio Wesleyan.

The same round moon that looked down on Moor Farm stared round-faced at Wolfe walking like an athlete in training along the Wannington road. He had had his belongings moved to the "Crooked Billet," a little old inn at the end of King street, and had taken a bedroom there for a week. It was the one "house" in Navestock that did not belong to Turrell's brewery, and Wolfe knew something of the man who kept it. In fact, the "Crooked Billet" belonged to Josiah Crabbe and Ragg, the landlord, had been Crabbe's coachman years ago.

"What, leaving Dr. Threadgold,

"Yes, I am."

"Sorry to hear it, sir."

"You must be one of the exceptions, Mr. Ragg."

"I don't know about that."

Mr. Ragg had carried Wolfe's baggage up on his own shoulders. He was an austere man, and kept an austere house, priding himself "that decent men could step in and have a decent glass of liquor, with no foul talk and no foul language desecrating my premises." Mr. Ragg would deliver little moral lectures from behind the bar, and drop pithy sayings while he filled the beer mugs. If such a thing as a Puritanical publican can be imagined, Mr. Ragg was one. His house was as clean and as garnished as the quarter-deck of a battleship. Wolfe found his bedroom to be a study in white, white walls, white chintz curtains, white coverlet, and the very furniture painted white.

Wolfe had unpacked his belongings by candlelight, and then sat himself down at the dressing-table and made an examination of the funds in hand. He had received some £70 in all from Threadgold, but part of it had gone in new linen, boots, a new suit of clothes, riding-breeches, a few surgical instruments, books, charities, and tobacco. He had about forty pounds left, no great sum to stock a war-chest with, and meditating upon the sincerity of these facts, he had gone down to the long, low room beside the bar to make a supper of beer, cold meat, and bread and cheese. Mr. Ragg had shown Wolfe great courtesy in his austere way.

"That is so."

"Then I must ask you to return me that map and those papers that I handed you the other day."

Threadgold stood stock-still a moment. Then he went back three steps, thrust his hands into his trouser pockets, inflated his chest, and stared hard at the opposite wall.

Those papers no longer exist, Mr. Wolfe."

"Indeed!"

"They dealt with matters that form part of my practice, and you obtained this material while you were in my employment."

"You mean to say, sir, that you have destroyed them?"

"I do. They have been burned."

Wolfe rose up. To Threadgold the tall figure seemed to grow and to elongate itself in the dusk. Into the silence that filled the room came the fluttering of a breeze in the mulberry trees across the way.

"Dr. Threadgold, you had no manner of right to burn those papers."

"Indeed, sir, indeed! And upon what grounds?"

"I will tell you."

Wolfe's voice was very quiet, but it was a voice that gave Threadgold the impression that it might break out at any moment into ringing and passionate anger.

Church League Rivals Clash In Opening Games Here Monday

THE DAY IN SPORTS

URGE ATHLETIC DEGREE
STANDARDIZE ATHLETICS

WITH A DEFINITE view toward standardizing athletic practices and regulations in schools within his jurisdiction, the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools is confronted, during the next year, with a lengthy report of recommendations made recently by B. L. Stradley of Ohio State University, at the annual meeting of the North Central at Chicago.

One of the most important features in the report was the recommendation that administrators insist that directors of athletics and coaches of major sports hold at least a master's degree in the field of physical education, or in an allied field, obtained from a reputable university.

This recommendation was made with the idea that, as soon as academic training among members of the coaching and physical education staff has been raised, coaches would be more capable of acting with entire freedom in conducting their activities in accordance with the ethics of the profession.

ONE STRONG point was brought out in connection with the rule which prohibits coaches from soliciting students. It was stated that professors can solicit as much as they, or the university pleases, without comment from the public or the press. But if a coach does the same, he is censured freely.

One college president said that he planned to make his football coach the dean of men at his school and therefore the coach would be eligible and free to talk before high school groups and to individuals.

It was recommended that college presidents and their representatives follow more ethical procedure when they find themselves interested in hiring a coach from some other school. And it was urged that faculties and faculty organizations give the same consideration to the dismissal of a qualified and faithful coach that is given in case of the dismissal of other members of the faculty.

Closer supervision of scholarships and loans granted to athletes, establishment of central employment committees on each campus which would allot jobs to athletes and non-athletes impartially was another point urged in the report.

A closer relationship between colleges and newspapers was mentioned, a recommendation urging that a single publicity director be used for all matters of public interest.

FOUR CHAMPIONS LOST TO TRACK

California Squad Hard Hit by Injuries; Keisel, Eastman Hurt

BY RALPH B. JORDAN

International News Service Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—Serious injuries have swept like a plague through the ranks of California's track and field stars this spring, leaving four champions in extreme doubtful condition for the I. C. 4-A classic.

When little Bill Carr, of the University of Pennsylvania, the world's greatest quarter-miler, ended his career in an automobile accident, there followed, like tragic echoes, serious injuries to California's fair-haired under patch athletes.

These included:

Ben Eastman, of Stanford, Carr's great rival in the 440-yard dash, 880-yard intercollegiate champion and record holder.

Bob Kiesel, of the University of California, I. C. 4-A, sprint champion.

Nelson Gray, Stanford, I. C. 4-A, shot put champion.

Bill Miller, Stanford, Olympic pole vault champion.

Kiesel seems to be definitely through for the year. He pulled a leg muscle as lead-off man for America's record-breaking 400-meter Olympic relay team and it hasn't healed. Then he fell off a horse, sprained his ankle, and has appeared in no coast competition. He says he won't even try to get in condition for the I. C. 4-A.

During the middle of April, Eastman was on crutches for a week with a pulled leg muscle. He only hopes to be in "fair" shape if his injury mends enough to allow him to start all in the I. C. 4-A where he probably will confine himself to the 880, the 440 calling for too much quick leg strain.

Gray strained his back at the start of the season and hasn't been any place so far, although he is improving slowly.

Miller hurt a foot against California April 15 and was on crutches for the following week, but probably will be ok for the I. C. 4-A if he doesn't re-injure himself.

NORTON, Kan.—The coyote hasn't a chance in this locality. John Hickman and Russel Fineback, aviators go coyote-hunting by airplane. They spot the animal at a low altitude, then give chase. The plane is banked so one of the men can shoot. If they miss the first time, they circle the ship and bank again and shoot till the prey is killed.

Martin, Shifted to Third Base, Boosts Cardinals' Chances

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—Serious injuries have swept like a plague through the ranks of California's track and field stars this spring, leaving four champions in extreme doubtful condition for the I. C. 4-A classic.

When little Bill Carr, of the University of Pennsylvania, the world's greatest quarter-miler, ended his career in an automobile accident, there followed, like tragic echoes, serious injuries to California's fair-haired under patch athletes.

These included:

Ben Eastman, of Stanford, Carr's great rival in the 440-yard dash, 880-yard intercollegiate champion and record holder.

Bob Kiesel, of the University of California, I. C. 4-A, sprint champion.

Nelson Gray, Stanford, I. C. 4-A, shot put champion.

Bill Miller, Stanford, Olympic pole vault champion.

Kiesel seems to be definitely through for the year. He pulled a leg muscle as lead-off man for America's record-breaking 400-meter Olympic relay team and it hasn't healed. Then he fell off a horse, sprained his ankle, and has appeared in no coast competition. He says he won't even try to get in condition for the I. C. 4-A.

During the middle of April, Eastman was on crutches for a week with a pulled leg muscle. He only hopes to be in "fair" shape if his injury mends enough to allow him to start all in the I. C. 4-A where he probably will confine himself to the 880, the 440 calling for too much quick leg strain.

Gray strained his back at the start of the season and hasn't been any place so far, although he is improving slowly.

Miller hurt a foot against California April 15 and was on crutches for the following week, but probably will be ok for the I. C. 4-A if he doesn't re-injure himself.

NORTON, Kan.—The coyote hasn't a chance in this locality. John Hickman and Russel Fineback, aviators go coyote-hunting by airplane. They spot the animal at a low altitude, then give chase. The plane is banked so one of the men can shoot. If they miss the first time, they circle the ship and bank again and shoot till the prey is killed.

BARNETT BROS. CIRCUS COMING

Two Performances Are

Scheduled Here for

Next Friday

Barnett Bros. Circus with its host of funny clowns, many cases of rare and wild animals and an array of men and women who daily laugh at death in their exploits to thrill and amuse will exhibit in Salem Friday, May 12, for one day only.

Aerialists, tumblers, acrobats, trapeze artists, wire-walkers, bareback riders, clowns, cowboys and cowgirls will perform in the three big rings under the circus tent in an almost unending procession of thrills and feats of daring.

One of the features of the show this season is the revival of the old time leaps which thrilled the circus patrons of a generation ago. Fifteen men take part in this part of the program and close the act by leaping over two elephants, a camel and two horses.

"Texas Ted" Lewis of Amarillo, Texas heads a congress of cowboys and cowgirls from all parts of the west who will depict the sports of the old west with the thrills and spills usually to be witnessed only at a rodeo.

Two performances will be given in Salem. The afternoon show is to start at 2 and the night show at 8. Doors will be open an hour previous to show time.

Coe's third horse, Pompoleon, and Bradley's Boilemaker and Fingal, were among those expected to be declared out.

With the promise of clear skies for the afternoon, at least 30,000 spectators seemed certain to scramble for views from the stands or along the rails when a roaring "they're off" sends an equal number of pulses soaring for a trifle over two flashing minutes.

LADYMAN, a mystery horse so far as the Derby route is concerned, nevertheless remained the east's chief standard-bearer and the outstanding public choice. The Coe entry, with the dangerous Pomponius as running mate, has fluctuated in the betting. Prohibitively priced in the winter books, Ladyman was backed down again today and stood an 8 to 5 choice.

Music "Heard" by the Deaf

Here is pictured a remarkable experiment recently conducted at a New York school for the deaf, whereby deaf children were enabled to hear. Instead of trying to make the sound penetrate the ears of the sufferers, this device carries mechanical vibrations through the bones of the head. Countess Olga Albani is shown singing into a microphone as the deaf children listen. This was the first time many of the children had ever heard music.

Notables at Opera Ball

In a determined offensive to drive the wolf from the doors of the historic Metropolitan Opera House, New York, society music lovers came en masse to attend the Opera Ball, held to insure funds for next season. Here are a few of the notables who provided color to the brilliant event. At left is Prince Hohenlohe and his Princess, the former Mrs. Gifford A. Cochran, of New York, as they portrayed the roles of Emperor Franz Josef of Austria and Archduchess Marie Charlotte. The prince is descended from the real emperor. At right, Mr. and Mrs. John H. G. Pell, well-known Gotham society folk, are pictured as they tripped a measure in the famous temple of music.

Here and There -- About Town

Give Entertainment

Several Salem people attended an entertainment at the Concord Presbyterian church Friday evening.

A program of vocal and instrumental music and readings was presented by the Misses Eleanor and Doris May of Austintown, blind musicians. Their numbers were enthusiastically received by the large audience.

The pastor of the church, Rev. A. Gordon Rich, Salem, announced that there would be a special Mother's day program at this church on Sunday evening, May 14, and also a special observance of Memorial Sunday, May 28.

Piano Recital

The costume piano recital given by pupils of Sylvia Marburger, teacher of piano, at the Christian church Friday evening was well attended.

Mrs. Marburger has written several new compositions recently for piano and two of these "Little Boy Blue" and "Minnie and Mickey Mouse" were used on the program.

Instrumental selections and song and dance numbers were included on the program.

Some of those in attendance were from Youngstown and Alliance.

Mother's Day Play

A Mother's day play entitled "Mother Blessing's Job" will be presented on Sunday evening, May 14, at the Christian church, under the direction of Mrs. Fred Rogers.

The cast is comprised of Mrs. Ross Clay, Roberta Reese, Mrs. Grella Schuck, Alice Stallsmith Bonita Crumbaker, Naomi Shinn, Anna May Painter, Mrs. Juanita Swartz and Anna Ruth Vincent.

Rev. Williams To Speak

Rev. W. R. Williams of Damascus will address members of the Men's Personal Work league at their meeting at the rooms, South Broadway, at 2:30 p. m. Sunday.

Special music will be an added feature.

King Kong, Opening Sunday, Heads Varied Film Program

ONE OF the strangest and most unusual pictures ever filmed will appear at the State theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday . . . From an idea conceived by Edgar Wallace, "King Kong" the huge monster of moviedom, finally reaches Salem two days of the week in "Central Airport" his latest film.

In support of the star is Sally Eilers, Tom Brown of "Tom Brown of Harvard" fame and Glenda Farrell, last seen here in "The Keyhole."

The film will show prehistoric monsters fighting, and will re-create the sounds they must have made while living.

The ape will be seen hurling automobiles, tearing up a section of the elevated railways, and making his last stand against civilization atop the tower of New York's highest skyscraper.

There this giant monster with a fragile young woman in his paw, fights a squadron of army planes remorselessly pumping bullets into his body. In a futile, but magnificent gesture the half human thing plucks a plane out of the air and hurls it into the street below.

Making Of Film Difficult

The task of making "King Kong" perform all these and many more feats required the ultimate in craftsmanship. Only one-sixteenth of a foot of film could be made and photographed at one time and never more than a foot of 20 feet on a good ten-hour day . . . The chief problem involved in this unique filming enterprise was how to place the ape in association with human beings and animate them all against the moving background of a busy city.

Fay Wray, Robert Armstrong and Bruce Cabot are the principal players in the picture.

"Hello, Sister" starring James Dunn, Boots Mallory, Zasu Pitts and Minna Gombell is the State's attraction for Wednesday and Thursday . . .

Briefly the story tells of the romance between a smalltown boy and girl brought together by mutual loneliness of the big city . . . The plot concerns the effect this love has on their immediate surroundings, their friends and their own lives . . .

This picture should guarantee plenty of laughs with such a cast of well known funmakers.

Federal Drive on Gang Czars Seen Death Blow to Rackets

* * * * *

Forty-three Kingpins of Gangdom Flounder in Federal Tax Net as Uncle Sam's Offensive on Racketeering Opens in New York.

WAXEY GORDON ATTY. GEN. CUMMINGS JOHNNY TORRIO DUTCH SCHULTZ OWNEY MADDEN SALVATORE SPATIE

Using the same effective means whereby the doughty Al Capone, Chicago's underworld emperor, was put behind the bars in Atlanta Penitentiary for an 11-year sojourn, Uncle Sam's sleuths have "put the finger" on no less than 43 of New York's reputed racket barons and have collected evidence to seek indictments on charges of Federal income tax evasion before a Federal Grand Jury. Among those swept into the net are Arthur "Dutch Schultz" Fleckenheimer, New York's "Public Enemy No. 1"; Irving Weissler, better known as Waxey Gordon, Schultz's rival for supremacy in the New Jersey beer business; Owney Madden, night club impresario and reputed labor racketeer, now serving a sentence for perjury in Sing Sing; Johnny Torrio, Al Capone's predecessor in Chicago and more recently a partner of Schultz, and Salvatore Spatiale, who momentarily posed in the national spotlight when he offered his services to Colonel Lindbergh as intermediary during the search for the kidnapped Lindbergh baby. The new offensive on racketeering climaxes everything previously attempted to end what has come to be a blot on the national escutcheon. Orders for the drive are said to have emanated from President Roosevelt himself. U. S. Attorney General Cummings and leaders of Congress are giving much attention to plans for the elimination of the so-called "invisible government" of the underworld, and there is every reason to hope that the present move in New York is but the beginning of a drive that will free the country from the menace of organized crime under which it has suffered for so long.

A third man, Harold Sawyer, Harwich resident, who also was questioned during the night, was in the automobile.

Commissioner Needham said no statement would be made until the party had reached Harwich, approximately an hour's drive and had had luncheon.
